

Book. Report. Guidelines using diction and syntax:

PP1: an abstract statement (example, analogy, etc...)
An imperative statement

PP2: Begin with a “loose structure” sentence.
Use an anaphora
Make the transition sentence a hyperbole.

PP3: One sentence must show characteristics of pedantic vernacular, and immediately following, a “pedestrian” explanation of the vernacular.
Transition with a rhetorical question (obviously must lead to the following topic)

2nd to last PP: Use an anaphora

Transitions to conclusion with a parallel sentence structure., an isocolon would be best. This will aid in you not having to repeat all key points in the conclusion, and allow you more access to extend the ideas of the paper beyond the text into a modern, real-world application (a rationale for your paper's importance, today, right now).

Conclusion PP:
An imperative statement
Contains one example of anadiplosis
